

Ali Ahmed } ... Continue editing
 } grammar & conventions

It's what you do in college and the experiences you gain that will ultimately determine your hiring worth in the real world.

Higher education, Shakespeare & class, a liberal arts major is useless and I disagree. Thinking about college and worrying about what they should be when they grow up, take breath; focus on what you need in a college experience where your interests lie, and then research schools based on that list.

Good concluding ideas