

Amanda Saywack

Culmination Project

Progress Report 1 Summary

Our first progress report was on the 20 of September, it was an interesting and insightful session during the beginning stages of our culmination project. Firstly, coming into this progress report head on, I honestly had no idea what to expect or what feedback I would receive from this session. Since it was the beginning stages and scoping out the plans, schedules, materials, etc, that I would need for this project, it was a little rough around the edges to quite figure out what exactly I needed to do. Finalizing my topic, and what I wanted to do was my main focus, I had so many things I wanted to do in this project but the feedback I received was more than helpful. Firstly professors suggested that I stick to one topic and expand on that, initially I wanted to do a lot of topics but eliminating most of them and focusing on one main point was my goal, next suggestions I got were to put intention into what I wanted to convey in my piece, why am I making this video, what's my end goal for it, and what do I want to get out of this. All in all the beginning stages of this project was more so of me smoothing out the edges and condensing what I already have into one piece that made sense.