EVOLUTION OF A LANGUAGE

~~The evolution~~

Evolution is a process ^{where we have to adapt to all the things we interact with according to our needs.} that can't be stopped or omitted from human's life development. Many people believe that it is a slow process, while others believe that it goes very fast. Many things in the world can evolve and get better when the evolution, from human's being to plants, animals, and even microorganisms. However, not only living things can evolve, other things can also evolve, such as a language. The following essay, "Texting Shorthand Annoys Purists and May Have Lasting Impact" by Seth Mydans, explains the impact of the English language as a result of its evolution or development. I agree with Seth Mydans' essay because he writes about "rebird" of a new way of writing due to text messaging increase.

① Sometimes, the unfavorable situations or circumstances lead a language ~~something~~ to make changes and improve ^{the it's being used} at ~~something~~. One of the best reasons to make this happen is the lack of speed or rapid rate that ~~a~~ writing takes when texting. Just like Seth Mydans state on his essay: "... the rapid rate at which it generates neologisms, or new words, ...". He ~~say~~ means that it is one of reasons and characteristics for a language being modified. Another sample from his work is also founded at the ~~begin~~ beginning, where he says: "... Quick, Inventative, and Utilitarian ...". As we can see here, he is showing us the reasons of why this new method ~~consist~~ is better, it is "Quicker" and "utilitarian" for many texters. These are some of the general reasons found by Seth Mydans on his essay, that convince us that ^{the English} language is evolving ~~and that~~ right now.
