

Abstract

A community health nurse assesses various aspects of a neighborhood to determine the communities' status and which aspects warrant education or change. This paper assesses the neighborhood in zip code 11203. It provides thorough evaluation on: community services, environment, health status, transportation, population, housing etc. It determines the strength and weakness of the vicinity, the health disparities of the area and provides example of ways a community health nurse could help maximize the health status of the residents in the neighborhood.
