Family Museum Guide

This is a representation of one of the foods I found in my fridge, it is also one of my favorite fruits.

In the picture the figure made me think of a cat turned around sleeping because of the (colored black) line extended at the angle, also, the (yellow ellipse) shape made me think of a potato as well as a pear. It is an impressive picture just because it can be interpreted in more than a few ways. It is an implication of abstract painting.
