

My visual quote is "Go Ahead Make My Day." It was quoted by Clint Eastwoods Dirty Harry character, he said it in the 1983 movie called "Sudden Impact." It is an expression encouraging the listener to challenge or defy the speaker in some way so that the speaker can then exact revenge. I created my visual quote by making a postcard about space. I added the sun and the moon and the stars. The moon is basically a sign that tells us that its night time. That it is time to sleep and get ready for bed and that is when it is dark. I showed the sun coming up to represent the switch from night time to day time. The sun coming up portrays the night and its darkness going away and making room for the sun to come up and the light to come forth. The Sun is making our day. In this case our daylight, that we see everyday. This quote is very meaningful to me and a lot of people because anyone would admire the night time but even so, we still need day time as well. Also because the quote is from a popular movie so people tend to love reusing this quote. Both night and day are needed despite which one is better. If it wasn't for the night we wouldn't need the day; and vice versa. When saying "go ahead make my day" it makes you seem fearless and ready for someone to make your day better or worse. Either way we all need the transition of the moon rotating with the sun. They switch positions so that our day can be made; figuratively and literally.
