Professor Belli

Cover Letter

Dear Professor Belli and readers this Utopia project has been quite the experience. When I first glanced at the directions I thought it was going to be an easy project that required little to no effort. But boy was I wrong. I missed the first class where the project had been discussed. The following class I was lost. I went back to read the instructions and decided to come up with a topic. I struggled severely during this step of the project. I just couldn’t come up with a topic my mind went blank. But eventually I thought about a topic that I would have fun researching and make this experience more enjoyable. When I decided to write about how utopias are impossible to achieve, and how dystopias are very real and all around us I knew I had a good topic for me. I immediately began to do some research. At first I did not know what exactly to look for, but then I just started looking at articles relating to either utopias or dystopias. I found a bunch of articles so I had to select the few that were more specifically talking about my topic. Then composing my presentation slides was fairly easy. It was just the organization aspect from it that was a bit challenging. This research project taught me a lot. I will always prepare ahead and to organize my work. But this project did teach me things I did not learn in class. I learned more about societies that are facing factors of dystopias. As well as, I learned how much dystopias are portrayed on television. They are extremely popular nowadays and are some of the biggest blockbuster films. Overall, this research project was an unforgettable experience as I learned a lot of information that I will never forget.
