Dear Mr. Worthington:

Please consider me for a position in your company's planned expansion program in Ohio. Your emphasis on developing a "leisure lounge" atmosphere to market reading material and music interests me greatly.

For the past three years I've been working with Borders stores in Texas, directing market research and developing sales training programs for field representatives. Each of my field representatives was among the top sales personnel in the company.

Recently, I've been attending Tritech College to further my education with an advanced degree in sales and marketing. The courses I've taken and the experience I've had should be an asset in developing the new directions your company is taking.

The attached resume details my qualifications and work history. I would appreciate your kind consideration in examining my application, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Regards,
John Nobel
