SITE REPORT [part 1]

Red Circles

INTRODUCTION

The Red Circles were located in front of the Starbucks at 6 Metro Tech Center, Brooklyn, NY 11201. These Red Circles represented a public art installation. I observed people walking around it, in a sense of trying to avoid it/ not interrupting its space.

PRE-VISIT REFLECTION

After reading our assignment requirements, I knew I wanted to find an art installation or a live performance of any kind. I anticipated that my view on what I would see was going to be different. It was going to be different because I was being challenged to look at things from a new perspective. Not only was I going to be observing the object, I was also going to be observing how people interacted with this object and how it affected the natural space around it.

SITE DOCUMENTATION (photos)

This picture show the Red Circles from a different angle. In this picture I can see the Red Circles but not the entire object.

The above image shows a closer view of the Red Circles and spacing in between and other symbols that can be seen when moved closer.

This image shows a more in depth visual of the shape, texture, size and built of the art installation.

SUMMARY / POST VISIT REFLECTION

I choose to complete my first in class assignment on an art installation because it seems more interested to me. The Red Circles were the first objects I saw when I went on my search to find an art installation. I decided that they would be an interested object to observe and learn more about.
