

I learned that many videos are a part of design due to the fact that there is organization and different editing tools give exposure and different lighting towards the viewer. Also I learned that they are related to graphic design because it is something put together with programs such as premiere and illustrator. I have seen that it is very related to books and comics because there is always a story with scripts and pictures. The way it is related to photography is that cameras with different settings and lighting give a better feel and environment. I also love the fact that there are sequences involved because there is always going to be a climax and plots. An example of this is a day in the life video where it explains everyday people's life and what they do on a day to day basis. Everytime there is a youtube video I have seen a hyperlapse which seems to describe a place and showcase a setting. Able to learn parts of imovie such as adding pictures in the program and having sounds different . I have also learned that premiere pro has color scheme to change the environment as well.
