

Story Proposal

Prepared by Camille Victoria Ragland

Overall the main idea is to ask what happens when a person dies, and to make the afterlife seem more of a fun idea, rather than something that is usually portrayed as terrifying.

Main Idea

The story will be in first person point of view, where the player will see a hand laying down a white sheet on top of them. This will symbolize death, as usually when a body is covered to hide from everyone. Afterward, the player will see one of the characters, the angel Micheal. Micheal will reach their hand out and greet the player cheerfully, and bring the player to an elevator. The elevator will go up and there will be an office with four figures, that represent the different areas of the afterlife called, Dearth. Dearth is a play on words meaning Dead Earth, and the word dearth means scarcity or lack of something, that something being life. The player will answer questions from the ambassadors of different parts of Dearth that will decide where they go in the afterlife, Heaven, Purgatory, Hell, or where the worst of the worst go, Florida.
