
Women's Press Collective

Don't just criticize the media, Organize the media!

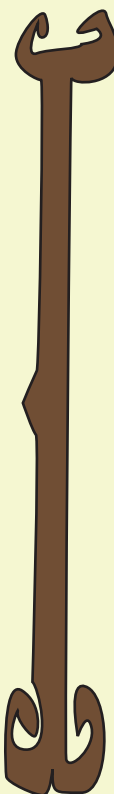

You probably already know this but over 90% of the mainstream media in the US are owned by a handful of huge corporate interests who cannot be relied on to publish the voices, struggles and victories of the low-income and working class people, due to serving the benefits of shareholders and advertisers and profiting from the decline of an organized workforce.

The wealthy are using the media to advance their financial, political and PR agendas, but what about the working people. where is their voice?

Full time and Part time volunteers needed to make this happen. We accept all kinds of help, Time, money, resources like paper and ink, Anything and everything helps in our fight for the community.

There are multiple ways to get your message across. We can pair you a writer, journalist and graphic designer to help get your story out there, on top of an opportunity to learn the trade itself. Never feel like you can't give speak up, we have everything you need.

WPC is Building a press that works for the working people!
