

At the United Federation of Teachers, they have this massive machines of Web printing that caught my attention of how they print works from media. These people prints using large-format, laser and inkjet printers. It's very interesting how different paper materials are inserted and prints it in a large format using a role paper of different colors.

This other machine Its used after printing a big poster and place the paper on a whiteboard. This machine press the paper to the board to make a big poster. It's very interesting the pressure of the machine makes the poster stick to the boar and not all off.

The process of this machine is to print out the magnet for a sticker for a refrigerator or anything in metal. I think it's very cool how the the magnet it's put separately from the card info.
