

Religious Social Committee

Firstly, I would like to thank the audience and to those reading this, I deeply appreciate it. When trying to abstract a reader attention it can be challenging, however, being dedicated and committed on a dream that will become reality nothing can stop me and I'm sure the same for you as well. My purpose of this campaign is to start an organization which will help young adults get mentored to the real world. It all started when I was young boy introduced to the life that we live in. Now, there's really no right or wrong answer since everyone has their own experience and been through situations some haven't. On the other hand, every living thing holds a value and purpose, trying to know the understanding of the Why and also the how. This puts us all on the same page, but with different opinion. Many countries, especially third world countries follow the tradition of religion in which it varies from young aged children to a fully developed grown adult. Also, they have a high influence to people who are not religious become faithfully churchgoers, but in America statistics show how a numerous amount of people are not religious and have no faith in no god. They become very atheist toward their life and play big influences on those who are young beginning to learn and develop. This organization will help those who need a push to understand how religion and having a belief with confidence on there is a God who helps guide our path toward life in which there is a reason and an answer to anything as long as you have faith.

There are several different religions that has been brought about throughout society today and many follow. During time people has created their own religion and others follow religions which has been passed down by many generations so far gone. Religion is the gathering of cultural systems, belief systems, and worldviews that establishes symbols that relate humanity to spirituality and, sometimes, to moral values. The faith and belief in the world religion should continue to expand but may be difficult since new modern day technology, and activities, people can get distracted on the simple things without understanding the value of life. This theory began in the 18th century with the goal of recognizing the relative levels of civility in societies. In world cultures, there have traditionally been many different groupings of religious belief different religious philosophies were traditionally respected as academic differences in pursuit of the same truth. As the generation continues to grow it seems as the power and energy society put towards this action isn't enough, and should be more opened up and awareness enhanced. People can have a chance to build faith in something that would give them the answers to question there is no factual truth to, but rather a belief system which makes them feel true to the word. There are about over 20 different religions that all have the same aspect just different on how they believe in the God. My mission is not to get a person to join a certain religion, however put a person on a right track on why it is important to have faith and how building a belief system can bring you understanding towards things that get confusing in life. Furthermore, in the end, we see that ultimate truth about God can be found and the worldview maze successfully navigated by testing various truth claims and systematically pushing aside falsehoods so that only the truth remains.

Lastly, using the tests of logical consistency, empirical adequacy, and existential relevance, also with asking the right questions, slowly pushes out to the truthful and reasonable conclusions about religion and God. Everyone should agree that the only reason to believe something is that it is true and nothing more. Sadly, true belief is a matter of the will, and no matter how much logical evidence is presented, some will still choose to deny the God who is there and miss the one true path to harmony with Him.
