The weekend was very mundane my sister left me and visited my grandmother's house and I stayed home and played video games and watch college basketball i like college basketball more than the NBA because ~~the~~ I feel as if they young players have more to prove and play much harder being most are trying to make it to the next level whereas that be overused or in the NBA, but 2 day ago one of my favorite players Kyrie Irving had an amazing game scoring 40 point with the victory over the Kings. The reason I love Kyrie so much because the way he score so effortlessly and has so much finesse when he plays I beautiful that it makes for a great show
