

Eguolo George, R.N.

Bronx, NY • egeorge3030@gmail.com

Individual Strengths:

I pride myself as having the ability to work in a team setting and in close collaboration with other health professionals such as physicians. I would consider myself as someone with good people skills, whether during rounds or on the facility floor. Remaining cool and assuring to patients especially when they are emotional is key. My communication skills that were refined through my schooling and job experiences allow me to interact with patients in varying conditions. I have a foundation of medical terminology, medication, and standard procedures such as administering injections. Overall I handle my activities with responsibility and compassion.