

[Fade into an image of City Tech]

GEORGE

Many students here at City Tech have either not been informed or do not take advantage of the resources that are available to them. There is a lot to keep track of, whether it's your grades and credits or simply knowing what you need to do in order to reach graduation. As part of the Getting the Degree Project, we aim to keep students motivated and well equipped to make the best of their college experience.

[Transition into the first interview clip]

[Audio of the question will be heard and the interviewers will each respond subsequently, this will go on for each question]

GEORGE

Did you know that City Tech has a college catalog?

Have you ever used the college catalog?

Do you know who the head of your department is?

Do you know what classes you need to take in order to graduate?

City Tech has college catalog that is easily accessible through the college's website. On it you'll find information on classes, majors, degree requirements, and everything you need to know in order to graduate. If you still have questions, there is contact information for each department where you can get in touch with someone directly.

[Audio of the next question will be heard]

Do you know how many credits you need to graduate?

[Transition into a screenshot that can give this answer visually, but be overlaid with audio]

60 credits for an associate's degree and 120 credits for a bachelor's degree.

[Audio of the next question will be heard]

Do you know what Pathways is?

[Transition into a screenshot that can give this answer visually, but be overlaid with audio]

The Pathways Initiative establishes parameters for a shared core curriculum and will help students advance toward degrees in a timely fashion. The system allows CUNY to have a common standard of basic classes that makes credits easily transferable between schools.

[Audio of the next question will be heard]

Do you know about CUNY DegreeWorks?

[Transition into a screenshot that can give this answer visually, but be overlaid with audio]

DegreeWorks is a web-based application that allows students to view their progress towards a degree.

[Audio of the next question will be heard]

Have you fulfilled your writing-intensive requirements?

[Transition into a screenshot that can give this answer visually, but be overlaid with audio]

This depends on what degree you are working towards. For an associate's it's 2 and for a bachelor's it's 4.

[Audio of the next question will be heard]

What types of study habits do you have? What tips would you recommend to other students in terms of studying?

[Transition into a photo for the conclusion]

GEORGE

Thank you for watching, I hope this video helps you get that degree. For more information, check out #NYCCT and #Keystocollege. For more study tips, check out the Getting the Degree Podcast.

[Fin]