Mr. Smith,

I'm an animator looking for the internship job working as the environment artist available at Avalanche Studios. I'm currently a beginner at animation and only have a few years of experience and have meet the requirements that you are looking for.

I have been interest in becoming an animator for a long time and have a few years in working at this particular field. As an environment artist, my duty is to follow his creative mind and create a well develop environment both fun and fantastic to the players. I have done a few small project in developing a gaming environment and create some of my own that I would be available to show you upon request. Your company has mention that you arrange regular workshop that you can all learn, grow and thrive from each other ideas. I will also share my best creation and grow and strength my work with the years to come hopefully working with your company. I would like to start off thanking you with the opportunity to be interview by you and discuss the position at hand and how I would benefit and strengthen the company. I'm very eager and await for the opportunity that you offer me a chance to applying for. I will gladly provide any addition information needed for the interview about my pervious or on-going work. Thank you for your consideration. Hope to get a reply from you soon.

Sincerely,

Aaron Feng
