

```
Author: Ben Mendoza
Date: October 10, 2017

def my_function(my_parameter): #Function definition its name is my_function, the parameter is my_parameter
    # The following lines are the body of the function
    if my_parameter >= 60:
        print("The condition was True. The number is grater or equal than 60")
    else:
        print("The condition was False. The number is NOT grater or equal than 60")

The following lines are not part of the function.
info1 = int(input("Enter a numeric value between 50 and 80: ")) # Asking the user for numeric value, the int() function is used.

my_function(info1) # Calling the function passing as argument the data provided by the user
```