Preface - Understanding the Process of 360 Waves

Many people feel as if obtaining the perfect 360 waves maybe more fantasy than reality , I myself have struggled to obtain 360 waves in my younger years until I came to understand the tricks that many of the best wavers in the community use on a day to day basis. With the use of the right products, brushes, techniques, and understanding of one's hair texture obtaining the look of a flawless 360 wave pattern can be gained by any anybody no matter the hair texture. In this book I'll give in depth details, breaking down the process of obtaining 360 waves differentiating by Hair texture. Being that the wave community is stock piled by people of every races and genders understanding the tips and tricks needed to become an elite waver is key to having successful waves, with that being said every beginning waver will greatly benefit from the knowledge provided in this book.

Coarse Hair -

One of the most common hair textures within the wave community is coarse hair. A person with coarse hair tends to have smaller curl lengths as opposed to median and straight hair textures, which makes it easier and faster for them to get waves in their hair eventually. People with coarser hair must use medium and hard brushes depending on the length of their hair and keep their hair compressed with multiple durags and stocking caps to lay their curls down forming a wave pattern on their heads throughout the day and certainly at night. The key to obtaining a wave pattern look to your hair will be to brush in the angle of a 360 pattern for at least an hour a day and start no matter your hair lengths because coarse hair curls faster than any other type of hair. The pictures below give examples of ways to brush your hair to obtain the look for a coarse hair waver.

Medium Hair -

Another common hair texture within the wave community is medium hair. People with medium hair have the best of both worlds between coarse and straight hair wavers. The texture of their hair allows them to have wider waves than coarse hair wavers with less trouble obtaining waves than straight hair wavers. Medium hair texture tend to curl at a slower rate than coarse hair so you'll have to use soft bristle brushes in the beginning stages and gradually move up to medium bristle brush 4 weeks after a basic haircut. Being that medium hair wavers have longer curl lengths they should only use hard Brush 6 to 8 weeks after getting a haircut. The usages of the hard brush will allow said waver to lay their hair down along with the usages of a durag and a stocking cap. As so pomaded Medium hair wavers should use much smoother pomades such as HD waves and 360 wave styles because their hair isn't has course and don't need thick pomades clogging up the pores in their heads, which will stop their progress of gaining 360 waves. As you can see below the angles medium hair wavers can use to perfect the style of 360 waves with their particular hair texture.

Straight Hair -

Finally the hardest texture to obtain 360 waves with is a straight hair texture. Conventionally people with straighter hair have to cut their hair to a length ranging between 16 to 20 mm to start. After a haircut it's best to brush your hair with a soft brush being that straight hair wavers have softer hair which takes longer to curl. I will usually take straight hair waves a longer time for their hair to curl because it curls at a longer length but the process of brushing their hair like any other waver, will still be key. Instead of using thick Pomades, Straight hair wavers should use less thicker pomades and oils to hold their hair down. The same rules apply to straight hair wavers when it comes down to wearing durags to bed and throughout the day if possible. Down below there will be images of straight hair wavers so you can see the process.
