A still life photograph on a dark, textured surface. In the upper left, a small dark bowl contains three sliced mushrooms, with a black fork resting on top. Below this, a dark oval plate holds five white eggs. One egg is cracked open in a small dark bowl, showing a bright yellow yolk. A small pile of white salt crystals sits next to the eggs. To the right of the plate, a dried, light-colored plant stem with small, delicate flowers is positioned vertically. The text 'What would a professional photographer do with an egg?' is overlaid in a white serif font across the upper right portion of the image.

What would a professional photographer do with an egg?

A decorative dried plant stem with small, delicate flowers, positioned vertically to the left of the names.

Peter Joung
Min Hui Siew
Naqueisha Moore
Sherrida Murchison

Clarence Hudson

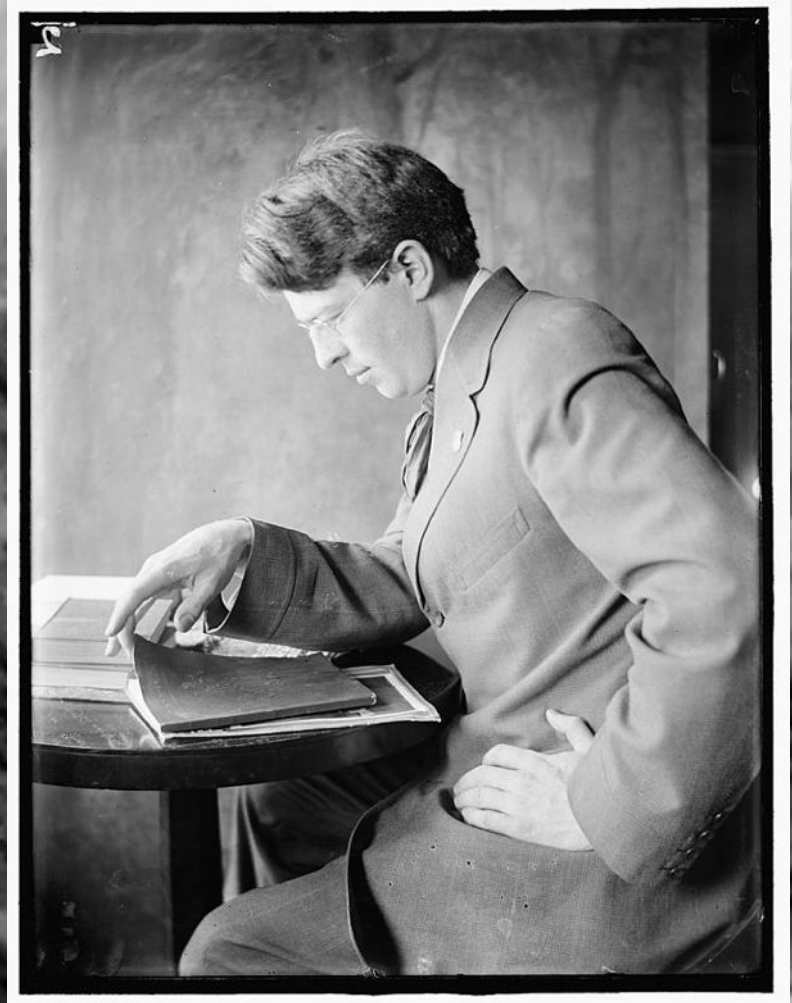

White

- Established first photo school in America.

- He even moved to New York just to live close to Stieglitz.

- Celebrated elemental things possibly because he's from small town in Ohio.

- He never did studio shooting.

Peter Joung

Min Hui

Siew

I like my eggs scrambled with lots of cheese!

Naqueisha Moore

Sherrida Murchison

Thank you!

