Unit 3 Writing Assignment
Process Essay Brainstorm Worksheet

The purpose of this essay is for you to examine the process, initial goals, and how you felt you were able to reach those goals. This is to be an informal essay that will help you think and write about your creative/writing process.

We're first going to brainstorm about the process by taking some notes on the following questions. Please remember you can certainly think beyond these questions—these are just a way to get you started.

Once you've answered these questions, write a Rough Draft of 400-500 words. The organization is up to you. You can use the questions below as an outline, but don't feel you have to use every single question listed. Use the ones you feel strongest about—again, the overall goal is to see how you use the creative/writing process.

1. When the professor first introduced the idea about “repurposing” your previous writing assignments, what was/were your initial reaction(s)? Please be honest! 😊
2. When did the mode of repurposing (creating a website for a particular audience) begin to “gel” and begin to take concrete form in your mind? Again, be honest!
3. What were your initial plans for the website? Be as specific as possible.
4. Now that you're close to the end of this project, were all your initial plans workable?
5. What did you have to alter as you worked on the website?
6. What has stayed the same?
7. How did you feel about the feedback you got from your first peer review?
8. What changes did you make based on the first peer review?
9. How did you feel after the second peer review?
10. What changes did you make?

11. Do you feel you were able to reach at least some of your initial goals? Why did you think some worked, while others didn't?

12. What did you learn about yourself in the process of this project?

13. What would you do differently, had you the time to start this project all over again?
