

How do economic constraints, including income levels and financial priorities, as well as cultural and social factors, impact the purchasing decisions and accessibility of athletic apparel among Latina women?