

Dani Brito (Edited)

eager to try things and learn

Hello everyone. My name is Daniela Brito. This is my first semester at City Tech, but I am not new to college by any means. I have an associates degree from Bronx Community College in Office Administration and Technology. I took a lot of time off trying to figure out where I want to be and I'm still a long way away. My goals are to finally complete my bachelors degree in a field that interests me and not just a general degree. I hope to gain technical skills as well as insight into the industry from professionals and other students. I am drawn to the hospitality industry. I enjoy learning about food, meeting people, and arranging events. I am currently working at Eataly; an Italian specialty market and restaurant. I come into contact with a lot of food and different people eager to try things and learn. I look forward to using this first semester with the department of Hospitality and Management to explore the industry more and see where in it I belong.