

Isranoor Syed Bio

Hi. My name is Isranoor Syed and I am an aspiring graphic designer and a student at City Tech. I am 18 years old and I was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York. My major is Communications Design and I am in my second semester of college making me a freshman. I am good with Microsoft Word and PowerPoint. I also can do a lot on Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, and InDesign. I have done some photography and graphic design before high school but other than that, my first semester of college is my only experience with these fields. My interests are video game design especially for fantasy or RPG games, art from video games or inspired by video games, grunge futuristic medieval and fashion from actual video games, surreal and architectural photography, fashion design, and of course graphic design as a whole.

I love that there are so many possibilities within graphic design and this drew me into graphic design even more. I started to like graphic design by seeing many interesting works graphic designers have done. I, on a daily basis, get inspired by various sources like Instagram accounts of fashion brands, models, YouTubers, photographers, gamers, Pinterest, and Tumblr posts of various art and photography, and even fashion I see on the train and on the streets when I travel to college. It also gives me more motivation to do better. I am a very understanding and curious person that loves to learn new things about technology and also different types of art that aren't just graphic design.

I'm not entirely sure exactly what my career choice is for the sure but I definitely want to experience working in the fashion and video game industry as a graphic designer or something similar. I hope to over time here at City Tech develop, grow, learn, and evolve into the designer I want to be in the near future.
