Lizzie,

No need. That is enough information. Thank you!

Hi Jason,

the drawings are on my to-do list for this week as I am back on the project (semester is nearly done)!

Manar al-Athar (<http://www.manar-al-athar.ox.ac.uk/>) is a digital photography archive project based at the University of Oxford. The book is peer-reviewed and will be co-published with an important American Research Institute (but I am not allowed to say which one yet) what else can I send you? Would you like the letter of acceptance from the Series Editor?

Best,
Lizzie

Lizzie,

Thank you for sending the citations. Have you had a chance to look at the latest drawings? Let me know if there are any continuing adjustments.

Can you tell more about the Manar al-Athar Monograph Series? I need to give some context for my evaluation documents.

Best regards,

Jason

Hi Jason,

Great and many thanks. I am abroad but returning home tonight of course:

E. Macaulay-Lewis and R. Burns, "A Monumental Roman Building in Southeast Damascus?" Levant, forthcoming, 2014 (Fall edition)

E. Macaulay-Lewis, Bayt Farhi and the Forgotten Sephardic Palaces of Late Ottoman Damascus, Manar al-Athar Monograph Series, no. 3, University of Oxford, forthcoming 2015.

How is that?

Best,
Lizzie

Lizzie,

I believe I have updated all the graphics based on the last round of comments. Check out the drop box folder to take a look.

I am preparing my annual evaluation documents for Citytech for reappointment. Would it be ok at this point to reference the publications for this work? If so, can you send the info for the citations for the publications?

Best,

Jason
