Dear amazing, outstanding, excellent volunteer team:

You made our first honors convocations in the new building an unqualified success! You filled the theater and first three floors with a welcoming spirit and made all of our guests feel honored and appreciated.

From the conversations I overheard among the guests, to the compliments for your work from administration and faculty, the response was universally positive. Each one of you not only were perfect at your specific volunteer role, but also went above and beyond to fill in wherever you saw a gap, and to let us know if you had an idea or several for how the event could be even better, many of which we were able to put into practice either immediately or for the second night.

Special thanks go to the captains and executive and operations committee members, who put so much time into thinking through the best way to use the Academic Complex for the honors convocations over the course of this entire semester. Without your intelligence, creativity, follow-through, and patience, these events would never be possible. I appreciate you and enjoy working with you more than I can express.

Hooray! Now, on to commencement!

Sincerely,
Kim
