Where I'm From

Born and raised in Brooklyn, New York. Went to highschool at the Highschool for Innovation in Advertising and Media, graduated to Borough of Manhattan Community College, transferred to New York City College of Technology.

H.S.I.A.M. taught me the advertising industry, and the importance of branding, with B.M.C.C teaching me how to apply these in design across platforms, and N.Y.C.C.T teaching me to focus that knowledge into specific industries and applications.

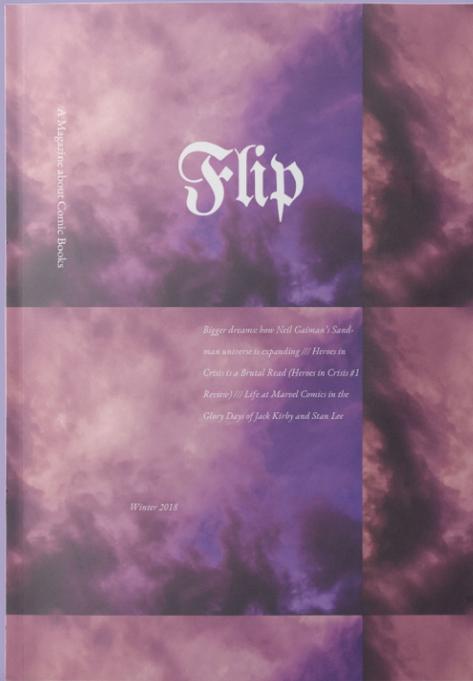

My Strongsuit

Over my times at different schools I've jumped around focusing my skills on one area or another but one that I continually find myself falling back to is typography. Working with kerning, leading, different typefaces and so on never seems to bore me, and I enjoy making it look just right for whatever I'm working on.

Bigger dreams: how Neil Gaiman's Sandman universe is expanding in Heroes in Crisis #1 Review (Heroes in Crisis #1 Review) // Life at Marvel Comics in the Glory Days of Jack Kirby and Stan Lee

Winter 2018

Heroes in Crisis is a Brutal Read (Heroes in Crisis #1 Review) by IGN

Heroes in Crisis is a brutal read. It's a story about a group of heroes who are all dying. It's a story about a group of heroes who are all dying. It's a story about a group of heroes who are all dying.

It's really a Catch-22

Heroes in Crisis introduces Sanctuary...

Class project for a comic-book magazine aimed at adults between 21-40. Focused mainly on strong type rather than traditional illustration

Bigger dreams: how Neil Gaiman's Sandman universe is expanding by David Barnett

Neil Gaiman's Sandman universe is expanding. It's a story about a group of heroes who are all dying. It's a story about a group of heroes who are all dying. It's a story about a group of heroes who are all dying.

He's maintained an appropriately gothic future...

Burgos's claims may have never made it to court; his dark ritual on that summer day may have instead been reaction

Type A Training

Redesigned the logo for an NYC based training program, had to work with older files as well as handle social media on multiple platforms

Word Art

I like to learn more about things I like as I get bored, these are some examples of how I learned some textual effects as I had free time inbetween semesters.

Ronin Odyssey

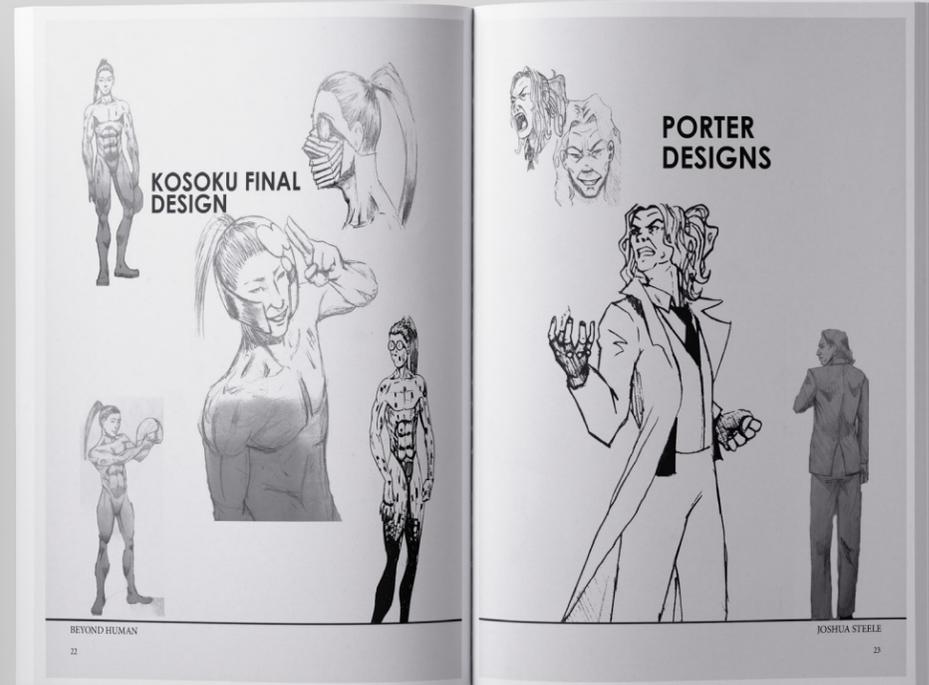

This was a joint project, some pro-bono work for a group of people looking to publish their webcomic into a competition by Shounen Jump, we both lettered, designing and coming up with SFX, word bubbles, and the art direction of it

URCNA

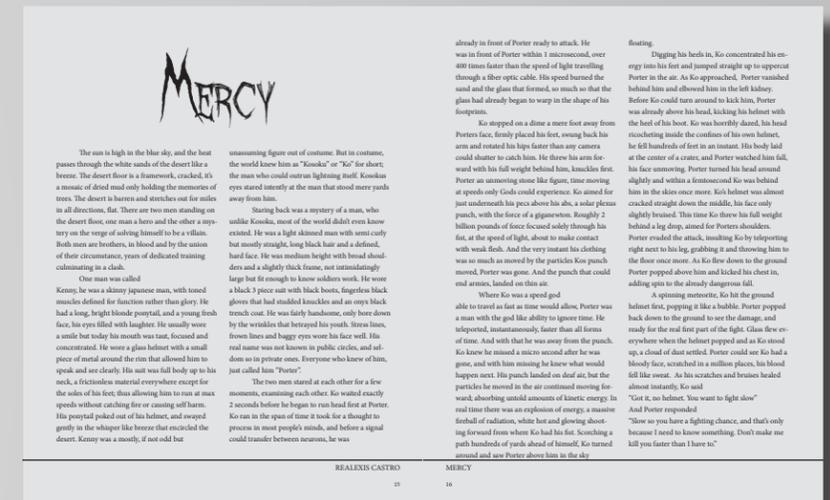

For a class on branding I choose to redesign a christian organization's logo, in this case, the United Reformed Churches in North America.

Caution Comics Magazine

A project I did with my friends a long while back, we're all writers and as I was in B.M.C.C learning indesign we decided to publish a small magazine and give it away on Free Comic Book day at a comic-shop we used to frequent. I ended up working with a friend to handle the art direction of the magazine.
