

Karl Jagdipsingh

4/8/14

Portfolio Draft Assignment Week 10

An organization that today encounters many problems to which I am familiar with is _____. Ever since my employment at _____ I have noticed many problems with overall business acts, customer service, employee rights and corporate. These problems have not gotten better and is slowly getting worse as my company is feeding into the stupidity that is presented to it. Although, _____ does attempt to better itself by implementing new business policies to better service and employee right. The yet as I learned without a watchful eyes these policies will just be ignored and instead lead to bigger issues.

_____ was a small homely company till it was bought out then its employees were expected to immediately adapt to the new company's style of handling business. There was no real problem with that except for the stubbornness of those who don't know how to move on. Besides the snideness of employees who think that just because they were employed for several years that they can get away with anything and not get fired there are the employees who are only hired because their friends or family of management. Finally the fact that the management chooses favorites and those chosen will not receive documentation for their actions that goes against store conduct.

_____ is very dependent on the budget of their individual store when it comes to hours and employees. The fact that there are about two other _____ within a four block radius of my store the budget is very tight and cuts get made a lot. It does not even become a fair game as my _____ is the smallest of the three and thus we miss many products that customers require. Our corrupt management now begins to play a game of favoritism as the employees that they do not like (no matter the work ethic) are dropped and the workload becomes divided amongst the other employees.

_____ is trying to fix their problems by creating new systems to rid the workplace of employees who cannot comply. First they began with secret shoppers but saying "Hi, need help" to every customer smudges out that. Then they introduced paper with information on what they expect us all to know but management just gives us a cheat sheet. Finally there's the district visits but if we clean up the store for a week we play it off and after the store just ends up looking like a pigsty again. In conclusion one cannot simply change _____ system because it's made of schemers who spent years lying to make themselves look good and it will always remain that way.