

Law 1101

Who I Am

My name is _____ and I'm Albanian and German. Growing up I've always had an extreme interest in law and criminology. I always gravitated towards this field and just wanted more of it. I wanted to sign up for the auxiliary force within the NYPD, which was a volunteer based group which would take care of events within your area, like parades, marathons, or other events. My working schedule complicated this dramatically and I couldn't pull through with it unfortunately, but maybe I can go for it again. Originally, I wanted to go to John Jay to major in criminal justice and go for my bachelors, but they didn't accept me, however, City Tech did. I'm in the law class to pursue the law major as it's the only interesting major I was to indulge in. I plan on becoming an NYPD detective or possibly going for Homeland Security as a career due to having such a piqued interest in it. I doubt I'll explore any other field as I mainly feel comfortable surrounded by law and criminology.

They also have a cadet program that some of our students have done. I'd be happy to talk with you about it if you'd like.

I love politics and always keep up with it as I feel that it's interesting to know what's going on in our country and what'll happen in the future. The current state is pretty chaotic and I doubt the tension will lessen any time soon, but only time will tell. Debating and proving that you're the one that's right is key if followed with evidence and points. Facts are facts and how you feel about a fact is your opinion, but at the end of the day, nothing can change the fact.

Knowing your rights and what's the law is key to practically surviving in this nation as that can easily be abused by anyone and if you don't know what your rights are, that's an advantage for the opposition. Sometimes people's rights are even abused primarily due to their skin color or ethnicity. If you know your rights, you're capable of preventing so many instances of abuse, like one example I heard about during orientation. One of the professors, who's name I have forgotten, mentioned how a border patrol agent attempted to ID an entire bus but someone who knew the law stated that the agent couldn't as they exceeded the border limit, which is 100(150?) miles.

He was a student, I'm glad you found our discussion useful.

well! I'm glad you're in our program and look forward to working with you.
