

Nov.14, 2014

To whom this may concern,

This letter is written to recommend my previous student Kristine Lauriello for a position in your institution. I have known Kristine since her initial enrollment at New York City College of Technology School of Nursing. Kristine has always been an outstanding student, both in the classroom and in the clinical arena. She began her education at the Associate Degree Level and continued her Baccalaureate education immediately following her graduation.

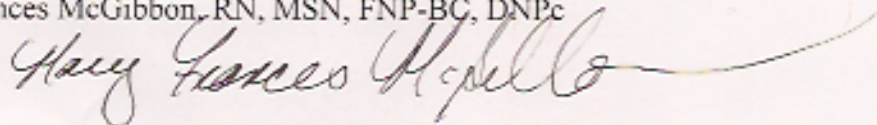

During her time at New York City College of Technology she worked hard and excelled academically. She demonstrated commitment to her profession and was always seeking opportunities to learn more. She was embraced by her student colleagues as a diligent worker and fine team player. Her perseverance and continued commitment to higher education is one of her enduring virtues.

Equally important, her compassion for quality health care is evidenced in the professional care she provides. Kristine is an outstanding example of professional nursing education and demonstrates this in practice.

I am proud to have had Kristine as a student, and I highly recommend her to your institution. Please consider Kristine for this valuable professional opportunity, as I know she will continue to excel with your direction and guidance.

Sincerely,

Mary Frances McGibbon, RN, MSN, FNP-BC, DNPc

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Mary Frances McGibbon". The signature is written in dark ink and has a long, sweeping horizontal flourish extending to the right.