

INTRODUCTION TO STUDIES IN MALENESS AND MANHOOD

This class will examine the world's history of male dominance and how, over time, man's position of power has diminished. To prove this, we will look at various arenas where men have always excelled—from socialized brutality to organized warfare, the home structure to Wall Street—in an attempt to determine how males came to power and where they have lost their footing. We will also discuss how the suffrage movement, feminism, the sexual revolution, harassment laws, and advancements in education have led to women becoming more independent and, thereby, to what extent these movements have impacted the concept of male superiority. Together we will ask and answer, "As women rise, must men fall?" Moreover, we will investigate what some cultures are doing to ensure that patriarchy continues to flourish.

This is a writing intensive, interdisciplinary course that satisfies the Creative Expression Common Core requirement.

Prerequisite of ENG 1101.

Course:	ENG 2170ID
Section:	E246
Days & Times:	We 6:00PM - 8:30PM
Room:	Namm 618
Instructor:	Professor Williams

REGISTER ON CUNYFIRST
FOR SPRING 2019