The met Gala is one of the most star-studded fashion events in the world. Each year a theme is curated to be followed by those attending sending stylist and make-up artist in a world wide to achieve the perfect look for their client since the event can become crucial to the celebrity's career.

This year's theme was gilded glamour defined as paying homage to the period of 1870 to 1890 when there was advancement in product development in areas such as textiles. Many stars showed out in their best gowns and suits but only one was dubbed as best dress. Singer Billie Eilish ditched her signature green hair sporting an all-black up-do showing off her dangling earrings, the singer worn a custom Gucci designed dress using upcycled material allowing her to stand out from the rest with a satin ivory colored dress with green/purple hue corset to help show off her silhouette along with a bustle to enhance the look of her waist complemented by green laced sleeves floral design as an underlay and a black choker. Gaining inspiration for the 1890 designer Alessandro Michele perfectly executed the theme providing the best (in my opinion) visual representation of what was considered "glamour" during this period of time. Billie's second met gala look shows her versatility in fashion with her last year's look being Marilyn Monroe inspired displays she can be so much more than the baggy oversized clothing she's used to wear.
