hi Emily: Why don't you start with these materials, ok? Let me know if you need more guidance. I'd suggest you highlight any of the following:

1. citations
2. prestige of your journals (do use a narrative form, e.g. this is a well-known, venerable journal published by one of the premier museums in the Unites States, etc. etc.)
3. acceptance rate of your journals (if you can find this)
4. ranking of your journals (see Google Scholar journals)
5. personal feedback about your articles
6. downloads in Academic Works

thanks, Monica

Hi Monica,

I am updated my eparse, which I will resubmit for review by this Friday. My chair asked me to look into figuring out my scholarly impact. Can you provide guidelines for this? Maybe I will start with one or two articles? Thank you.

Best,
Emilie
