Subject: Thursday's Hybrid Class

Dear Monica,

Thank you so much for your visit to my hybrid class today. I know most of the students didn't participate. Having only a handful of student as a class isn't easy. I would much rather have the 18 student usually required. I also find that the quality of students in hybrid classes are not the same as the online students. Most of the students don't come every week. There isn't the same continuity as the online students have who show up every week. Not sure how these student are selected to be in the hybrid class? That's my frustration as a instructor. In reality the students would much rather be online!

The information you demonstrated to them was excellent! I look forward to reviewing with them next week. Their drafts are due next week too. Not sure how many I will receive?! There are at least two students that have not been in class for two weeks. There were four absent today. Huh! More frustration! The material you presented was wonderful. I learned so much watching you do the searches. I know you worked hard before and during the presentation. I can't thank you enough! I am hoping you will be able to come back perhaps next semester? If you can't I have the recordings of the presentations. I feel your enthusiasm as a librarian was contagious to the students. I could sense that at the end of the class today. While they didn't participate, they came away with knowing they can get help and they have a new way of searching for their logos using the library.

It was a pleasure getting to know you and watching you share your wonderful skills! Thanks again.

Best,
Thelma
