Graphic Design Principles I Course Experience

At the beginning one expected this class to be software based. It was not, although a little disappointed everyone soon put their minds to work to on it. The class was was overall a get experience, not only the class taught one how to think like a designer, it showed one how work like one.

While taking taking this class one can expect to learn how to design with your target audience in mind. It will teach you how to look at advertisements, not as a consumer but as a designer. You can expect to get studio time everyday to perfect your focal point assignments. One can expect to work with monochrome colors. The work is also respectfully critiqued by your classmates and professor everyday. This class was the epitome of a designer's work ethic. It was not the easiest class, but with the professors support and understanding, anyone who works hard shouldn't have difficulty.

In conclusion, if you're a designer with a creative mind and a strong work ethic, then this is the class for you. Come learn what it's like to think what it's like to not be the consumer but how the creator work their magic to aesthetically please people like consumers.
