

I consider my greatest attributes in writing is writing in chronological order. Whether its an essay that involves my experience or one where I have to research and write.

Everyone relates to the writing process in their own way. That is because in composing a written piece, we leave some of ourselves in every piece. From our language, to our sentence structure. From everything down to the way we write each letter.

As a writer, I've established myself to be able to get my idea or ideas across on paper, and to do so in order. So that the reader could read my piece and be able to understand my work and come away with their own idea or interpretation to my work.

Most of the topics are about self experiences. Experiences that have had a great impact in my life.
