History of Abstract Art

Abstract paintings emerged as a departure from classical and traditional academic painting in Europe during the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Many well known artist prior to this time painted following the methods of classical realism, which used realistic perspective, shading, and other techniques in order to create historical scenes and subjects. During the turn of the 20th century many artist were against formal teachings and started to create art that did not refer to the real world. The artist started to experiment with new techniques such as vivid colors, reconstructing shapes, and rejecting realistic three dimensional perspective.
