English Composition 2

Ever since I started high school I have always loved english. I loved reading and writing. I enjoy writing essays because it persuades me to brainstorm and come up with new ideas. I love to write essays because it keeps me going and I don't know when to stop typing or writing until i have given enough information.. One thing I hate when I am typing essays is that I constantly mess up my grammar and spelling. I would feel discouraged because I would receive corrections on my grammar. I felt that I wasn't going to get better and that I wasn't trying hard enough. However that is something that i am improving on and hoping to get better at. Especially while I was creating the website for the genre assignment. I have improved my grammar and spelling, also because I have found a source that helps me with my grammar and it also helps me without using the same words repeatedly.

For instance the source I have been using to help me improve my grammar is called “Thesaurus”. I reviewed this website ever since I started college and it has really helped and supported me when it comes to writing essays or writing assignments for my classes. Ever since I started using Thesaurus, the website is always on my phone and laptop. It’s a task for me to have the website on my phone because I continually used it. And telling by the views of me using the website, I can tell how much I have gained more knowledge with my grammar and I see that i receive less corrections on my spelling and grammar. For example, while creating the website for the topic “ How has R&B music Transformed throughout Time?” the grammar I have learned from Thesaurus, I have applied it to the information that was given on my website.

However, when I saw the word “repurposing” on the english assignment, at first I was confused because I saw I have never heard of that word before, but then later on I understood what the word meant. After I understood what the word meant, I started to read the instructions more and that's when I fully understood the assignment. Everything was clear to me because the professor explained it more. While reading the assignment I saw that we can “create a website for a particular audience” I started to get more interested in the assignment because I already knew what I wanted to do and how the website is going to be created. Although I already knew how the website was going to be created, my initial plans were to blend the color and the visuals theme into the topic. For example, since my topic was about “R&B Music” I wanted the color and theme of the background and the presentation to be “90’s old school theme”. I wanted the color to catch the viewers attention when they first opened my website. My other plan for the website was to make sure that my information was organized and simple to read and understand. The end results to the project were better than I expected. At the end of the project my initial plans were workable and I loved working on the project.

Although I enjoyed and loved working on the website, I did receive feedback. It was great and positive feedback based on the website, despite the fact that I received feedback I also received corrections on my grammar and spelling. However it only came from one student, and even though I was told to correct my grammar and type more information on R&B, I was proud that only one person saw that my grammar needed to be corrected and the correction was only on one slide of the website. The feedback I received really helped me improve more with my grammar, linguistics, spatial, and the visuals towards the website. After the feedback and the corrections I have received towards the website, I made a few adjustments to the website such as; adding audio music to one of the slides and also typed a paragraph about the “intended audience”, the adjustments I made to the website are the corrections that were given to me.

During this assignment process I have learned that I can get very excited when it comes to English and typing essays or assignments. I have also learned that I am very concentrated on the assignments I'm passionate about, especially when it comes to my English, public speaking, and my marketing class because the information and knowledge that I am learning about in the classes are going to be useful and helpful for my future. Even though I enjoyed working on this assignment, one thing that I would do differently is to explain the genre of R&B music more and I would also go back and review my grammar so I can fix it.

Therefore, I enjoyed this English assignment, and while I enjoyed working on it I have learned a lot about myself and what needs to be corrected more. I have also learned that I should review my work twice instead of once. This assignment really expanded my grammar and horizons when it comes to English. I encouraged myself throughout the whole process of working with this assignment, I even asked others to see what their point of view on the website and what should be corrected and what should remain the same. The end results of the project were better than i expected and the feedback that i received from others was surprising to me because i didn't think that people would like my website and enjoy the theme and the knowledge of R&B music. Overall, this assignment helped me improve on the corrections I was struggling with in the past.
