

Street art

Jacky Dong

There many ways to make street art, usually it would be mostly in image but there is still some examples that's created by sentence or words.

The tone of this genre can shift, it depends on the topic your using and what mood would you like to make it as.

One of the features I like about this genre is that because it's very free, where you can do anything that comes to your mind and draw them down or write them own.

It would mostly be seen in public where some are on walls and some were on others buildings.

Street art is often created for sending a political or social messages to people who looks at it

Most artist uses the element of graffiti to their work, which draw the letters di
