Final Reflection & Portfolio

Final Reflection: For my first semester`at the beginning, I started to think it was going to be extremely hard for me to keep up due to the fact that there were many intelligent students in the same classroom as I'm in. I began to wonder if the way I processed information was slower or different than everyone else, if my way of critical thinking was at a lower level compared to the other students. As a reader, analyzing and taking plenty of notes helped me grow to gain better understanding. Doing this also helped my critical thinking and helped me be up to speed with class discussions and even speaking out loud. I feel like I grew as a reader, throughout the class readings we've done and researching for our own topics for assignments. When I improved more in reading I was able to take notice of my growth in writing. I used to write a little too straight forward and especially my word choices were very low so my vocabulary expanded throughout this semester. My placements for evidence began to grow more especially when I never really used to explain what the evidence shows. It usually would take me a while to get writings done, since I never really know what to do when it comes to sitting down and getting the work done. Especially when I didn't know how to understand the readings. Overall I grew so much in my opinion.
