Wednesday, December 15,

To a future student,

English will always challenge your thinking process. English will help you matured your brain, and this class will look into doing that. This class will make you make an impact on the world. One thing I wish to do if I can go back in time is to not slack with the first low writings assignment. Openlab was a little bit difficult for me to use at first, I had some assignment that I thought I uploaded that turned out I didn't or uploaded somewhere else so get familiar with openlab. My favorite assignment was the Unit 1 where we had to talk about one of our discourse courses about something that matter to us. I really enjoyed writing that assignment because to me it felt like therapy because what I talked about really was on my mind. I enjoyed writing all the articles. I wish I had time writing more about the final reflection because the stuff I learned in this class is really had for me to put in words. Putting your feelings into words is the most thing you will learn in this class. You'll see that expressing yourself anywhere is easy.

Sincerely,

Chafick Da Silva
