Access to healthcare

Why it matters.

It's important to have a health insurance because it helps a person to stay healthy, even if the person is in good . health insurance companies such as public services, has to make sure that people have the access to primary care, emergency treatment, and free services.

Health is a priority

There are immigrants, including the hispanic/latino population without health insurance. Not having health insurance is something important because you cannot access the services that you need. And without it, you may need to pay out of pocket and not everyone has that kind of money.

Undocumented immigrants are not eligible for government funded health insurance and often cannot afford a large amount of money to pay for the coverage of the any insurance company and because of this They are reluctant to visit hospitals for fear of deportation and discrimination because sometimes they cannot speak English, they have unlimited language .

The U.S. Hispanic/Latino population faces significant barriers to accessing healthcare and the most common barriers Latinos face are language barriers, cost barriers, immigration statuses, insurance coverage , and education barriers.

Health Coverage and Care of Undocumented Immigrants

Undocumented immigrants can obtain low-cost care through community health centers such as having emergency medicaid or programs like V Maternal and Child Health Services and Title X Family Planning programs.

Undocumented immigrants are at high risk of being uninsured because they have limited access to coverage options.
