Has a child from two immigrants parents immigration has been one of the hardest things that anyone can go through because they risk their lives just to have a better future in a new country and new environment. If don't know every person who immigrants has there own story how they sacrifice themselves to be here and for those who judge them and make fun of them isn't nice feeling at the end we are all huaman. There was a point in the United States where we had one good president who actually did something for immigration and did a program called DACA. Who else than President Obama who helped thousands and thousands of dreamers to get their education and have a better future even though you immigrate that says a lot of how the United States was before. The reason why I say this is because my two cousins who immigrated to this country DACA actually helped them and the way it changed their life was insane because they were so surprised how much this state really cared about their future even though they didn't know that much english. Where my family is from is from Ecuador and to get money or have an education is one the hardest thing don't get me wrong the people over there is more humble and nicer than people from the U.S trust me. I take my father for an example he didn't have the same opportunities that I have now he told at the age of 8 he would hustle and work just to help out my grandma. The place my dad would live was in a little house it wasn't the biggest thing but he always knew he will be someone in life even though he didn't had an education. After the years pass he decided to come to the U.S at the age of 17 he was very young but one thing is that my father wasn't lazy he was the type of man who was a hard worker. Through the years he has improved his work as a constructor it wasn't easy as you think but now he owns his own business of construction which I every proud of even though he always wanted to be an architect because of the way he does math in his brain is insane and even though he didn't went to school I was proud to call him my father who never gave up. To say he immigrate for a reason was to have a better opportunities like this because back home he wouldn't. Just wanted to make something clear everyone immigrants for a reason and that is for a better future because people think the worst like we are all human beings. Like when they made trump a president let me just say this is one the biggest mistakes ever did he was the most racist president in history. It makes me sick how a president like that has the heart to cut off a program that helps young dreamers to keep on with their education and that is the type of world we live in hate misjudgment and so much racism. The way the dreamers fought for this program was hearting breaking just for the president afterward use that money for more protection for the wall which to say no more people to immigrate to the United States that is just sick. There was a point where he was sending ICE to any house and it was hearting breaking when you see it through the news how they are crying and how the president separate thousands of families. At the moment I was scared for my parents and that same day one friend of mine told me she came home from school and all her family member was there. At that moment later on she heard ICE banging the door and took her dad way the way she cried when she told me really felt like someone took my heart away. No child should go through this and see someone who you love get taken away. In my head I'm like wow like this world we live in like when is this hate is going to stop when are we are all going to come together I guess never. Lastly, this isn't the only thing I have to say there is one last story to tell and is about my family member name Noemi who just had a child in ecuador and was coming here. Like I said my country is poor and if your baby is sick you have to paid a lot money isn't like that in the U.S. When her baby was born they said he was fine when she was coming here she suffer a lot because of the way immgrtion people treated everyone which they would eat once a day and the baby would be change only one time a day not only that it was very cold. She told me how the kids were crying because they were hungry and were suffering from a cold. Perhaps all of that the doctor told her that her baby wasn't fine they did an operation in Texas due to his health issue which was that the baby blood wasn't fueling right the doctor was surprise that the baby was strong enough to go through it. What if Noemi didn't came to this country her baby could of die and isn't me saying that even the doctor said it. Noemi said if I was in my country I wouldn't have enough money I would let the baby live into he could that broke me to hear a mother to say that due to money problems. This is an example why a lot of people want to immigrate because no matter what this state is going to be better than their country will. Noemi said I'm surprised how this state cares so much for my baby's health and now he is better smiling and having a good life. Overall, I just want to close up with people want to come to this state for a better future and through alot of stuff that has happened through the years we are all human and should be treated the same and feel welcomed no matter where we are from less hate and more love to each other.
