Gun Violence in America

This multimodal is about spreading awareness regarding one of the most deadliest crisis in America which is Gun Violence and also includes what Americans can follow in order to stop this crisis. First of all, I wanted to split my information into 4 main points which are the problem, current solution, Alternative solution and conclusion. For the problem I wanted to show my audience (American people) the basic information about the crisis such as 'What is gun violence?', 'How bad is the crisis?' and 'Why has the problem worsened?'. Furthermore I have included the statistics to show my audience the mass shootings that took place in America. In between the 4 main points I have included pictures to show the transition between 2 points. For the second main point which is about the current solution. In the 2nd main point I have included information about what America is trying to put into action in order to reduce gun violence. The current solution includes background check and Trump's solution which specifically focuses on school shootings. In the background check part, I wanted to show what it is like to buy guns in America and I included information that the background checks included. I want to show my audience that the background check in order to buy guns in America is totally weak and anyone can buy guns easily. Moreover, Trump's solution in order to reduce school shootings includes allowing teachers to carry guns which is one of the most ridiculous ideas to prevent school shootings. By the way, in the presentation slides I have highlighted the important information so that it makes my audience easy to understand the main point of the slide. For the Alternative solution, the solutions are gun safety programs and Japan's example. Gun safety programs are basically about reducing the easy access to guns. I mean there will be many loopholes on where people can buy guns and banning those loopholes can be also a huge success in order to reduce gun violence. Japan's example which was also included in my annotated bibliography, it is basically about looking at the other developed countries on how they have reduced gun violence. Japan is exactly the opposite of what Americans value. Japan believes that "No one shall possess a firearm or firearms or a sword or swords" which says everything about how Japan has not a single gun violence crisis. In order to support my claim I have included statistics of gun death rates in different countries. Lastly, the conclusion includes recap to bring my audience back to the main points and remind them about the issue and call to action which talks about how my audience can join me and many Americans who have been affected by gun violence in order to stop this crisis. I believe the way I have structured my multimodal can make my audience easy to understand the main argument. This multimodal includes less words in some parts and also includes extra words. Nevertheless, It's more important to understand the issue and solve the issue and I hope this multimodal can aid most Americans to put an end to this. No more silence; end gun violence!
