Process essay

When the professor first introduced the idea about repurposing our previous writing assignments, my first reaction was very good because my assignments were things that I am passionate about such as fashion design and styling so repurposing would be easy for me. At first I had trouble with starting the website because I didn't know how to use the information in a more interesting way for a website. So I began adding pictures to make the information more appealing to the reader. When it started to gel I chose one of the assignments that actually can have a greater impact and people can be more fans of. My initial plans for the website was to talk about fashion design and the history of it. I wanted to talk about the beginning of fashion and how it has evolved now. I wanted to involve people who are well known in the industry and people who had inspired me as well. Now that I am finished with the project, my initial plans were workable because all the thoughts I wanted my website to get my point across were able to be explained. Me adding pictures was workable because I matched the text with the pictures. I had to alter how much information to put it because I wanted to make it interested but not over doing it with text. Everything else I have planned out has stayed the same for the website. I have got good feedback from the first peer review but had to do some changes and improve my website still. The changes that I made after my first peer review was to add more content about fashion in general such as famous people and the background of it. Another change that I made was to add something about myself relating to fashion and how I started my brand. I added videos showing famous designers' work and their shows. I felt really comfortable after the second peer review because I had added everything in the first review so I was set about my website and ready to go. I felt that I was able to reach some goals because I wanted to make a simple website but add enough information where the reader can learn something. I learned that I am very confident about my work and very passionate about my subjects which leads to my work being good. If I had to change one thing about my website, I would probably add more interactive things that has to do with the website
