Essay Brainstorm

When the professor first introduced the idea about “repurposing ” my previous writing assignments, I was lost and confused because this was my first time doing this type of assignment. I didn’t have any idea about it. I had to read the process over and over in order to become familiar with it and also I had to speak to one of my classmates to see if she had done it before.

The mode of repurposing began to “gel” and begin to take concrete form in my mind after I spoke to one of my classmates. She helped me understand it better by telling me what I had to do to put everything together, to collect and organize everything. After reading all the procedures, I had a better view about what repurposing means and how we can use it to collect ideas and share our thoughts through this website.

My initial plans for this website were to become familiar with repurposing and be able to collect and use all ideas that I had in my discourse community as a guide to complete this experiment.

And yes, all my initial plans were workable. I was able to use all my previous information, not just copy and paste but re-collected and reorganized everything in a beautiful way that also helped my readers to have a better understanding about what a nurse was about , what they needed to do and what they needed to know before joining this group , and also why nursing is so important in our society.

As I worked on the website , I had to alter a couple things that were unclear to my readers and I had to give a little bit more explanation about the main reason why I chose to become a nurse.

Pretty much everything has stayed the same except the organization that I had to change in order to make my website look more interesting for my readers.

And the feedback I got from my first peer review, helped me a lot. It helped me remember couples things that I forgot to do. For instance , I forgot to add citations but, after reading the feedback from my peer review , I realized that it was important to add it. It was really helpful.

And yes ,I feel I was able to reach at least some of my initial goals. Since that was my first time doing a repurposing assignment, like I said earlier, I did not know what it meant by “repurposing “ , however I feel like I was able to reach at least some of my initial. At first , It was confusing me but yes, everything worked out perfectly and I was happy with that.

In this project , I learned that we can do anything if we put our mind into it and it is really important to try even though it might be confusing because if we don't try , we will never know what we are capable of.
