Annotations

(Par 1 & 2)

- From what I understood, the author is telling us that even the best writers can't be perfect at writing full pieces that will be considered "best book of the year award", because writing craft takes time.

(Par 3& 4)

- See how I can relate to the author as letting yourself run wild in on paper to edit later, but at least for me I always got judged for just writing my thoughts down.

(Par 5& 6)

- I see how the author is trying to tell us the ways of writing reviews and getting criticism back. As it is scarier as depending on the criticism you could be hurt because it's your craft and all. But it's comforting knowing even the best authors feel the same.

(Par 7 & 8)

- I like her processing method as it shows that she really cares for her writing and how it may affect herself if others read her "shitty drafts".

(Par 9 & 10)

- I like how the author breaks down the paragraphs in a simple but efficient way to write essays professionally and as perfect as it can be.
