

February 11, 2021

To whom this may concern,

This letter is written to recommend my previous student Sabina Cormier, for a position in your institution. I have known Sabina since her initial enrollment at New York City College of Technology: School of Nursing. Sabina has always been an outstanding student, both in the classroom and in the clinical arena. She began her education at the Associate level and continued there till she attained a Baccalaureate Degree. She is currently exploring opportunities to continue her education in Nursing and is seriously interested in your program of study.

During her time at New York City College of Technology she worked hard and excelled academically. She has demonstrated commitment to her profession and always sought opportunities to learn more. She was embraced by her student colleagues/ professional colleagues as a diligent worker and fine team player. Her perseverance and continued commitment to higher education is one of her enduring virtues.

Equally important, her commitment to quality health care is evidenced in the professional care she provides. Sabina is an outstanding example of professional nursing education and demonstrates this in practice. She has been employed at New York Hospital Columbia Presbyterian for many years and excels in this role as well.

I am proud to have had Sabina as a student, and I highly recommend her to your institution. Please consider Sabina for this valuable professional opportunity, as I know she will continue to excel with your direction and guidance. Please contact me if additional information is required.

Sincerely,

Mary Frances McGibbon

Mary Frances McGibbon, RN, MSN, FNP-BC, DNPc
Associate Clinical Professor Nursing Department
New York Institute of Technology
Old Westbury NY
917 945-7969