

Shirley Hun

ENG 1121

Prof. Cipriani

May 6th, 2023

ENG 1121 challenged my skills and pushed me to reach new advancements in my writing journey. Throughout this whole semester, I don't believe I was as engaged as I should be. The difficulty was being able to give this class my utmost attention, and because of that, I struggled to grasp most of the material. I didn't feel I produced the quality work I wanted. However, I was ecstatic about revising, as it gave me the opportunity to fix my mistakes, and effectively use techniques that will elevate my pieces. I tend to ask myself, what will my future look like? Or whether there will be hurdles as I pursue my dreams. Will I manage to get through them? I envision myself as a nurse with my BS degree with thoughts of taking it a step further, being a nurse practitioner. I can undoubtedly say that I have a passion for nursing, and will continue to nurture my love for it. Being able to meet and assess the needs of people who seek help and make a difference in their lives fuels me. I truly value and appreciate this semester, and class in particular. The experiences and lessons I gained made me recognize that I have so much room to grow! Whether it's my grammar and punctuation or being able to effectively communicate my thoughts on paper.